SCHEDULE OF THE DEBTS OF FRANCIS BACON

(A small portion only has been reproduced)

BACON COLLECTION. The Collection of Books used by JAMES SPEDDING (1808-1881), the accomplished Editor of the Works of Sir Francis Bacon, as his working library in bringing out that "unsurpassable model of thorough and scholarlike editing." 363 vols. in 318, folio, 4to., and 8vo.

v. d.

Price of the Collection, £400 net.

This collection should be an invaluable acquisition to a public library or to a collector of Baconiana, as it includes a number of the first and early editions of Bacon's Works and those of his contemporaries, some of them of great rarity, and also a valuable collection of books in Baconian literature. Additional value is given to many of the books from the fact that they are enriched with Spedding's MS. notes (all the cases in which they occur are not mentioned below). A few volumes have been added by me to strengthen the collection, but the great bulk is as Spedding owned it.

CONTENTS

SCHEDULE OF THE DEBTS OF FRANCIS BACON, LORD VISCOUNT OF ST. ALBAN at his death with the dividends paid to the respective Creditors. A Legal Document on vellum (24 ins. × 27 ins.), signed by Fra. Phelips Audit and John Penkethman Scri. publ.

A most interesting document shewing the deplorable state in which his finances were when Bacon died. The debts amounted to £22,371 1*s* 3*d*., while the estate realised but £6,900.

In 1730 this document was in the possession of Thomas Granger, who allowed Blackbourne to copy and reprint it in his edition of Bacon's Works. There are, however, variations between the original and the copy.

[BRYDGES (Grey), Lord Chandos?]. Horæ Subsecivæ. Observations And Discourses. London, Printed for Edward Blount . . . 1620.

Sm. 8vo., hf. bd. 1620

This anonymous collection of "highly interesting essays" (as Sir Sidney Lee terms them) has been attributed to Grey Brydges, fifth Lord Chandos, by Horace Walpole and other writers. Anthony à Wood and Bishop Kennett, however, assign them to Gilbert Cavendish, eldest son of the Duke of Devonshire; and an almost contemporary note in the Huth copy endorses their opinion. A third opinion is expressed by Malone and Park, who credit William Cavendish, Gilbert's brother, with the authorship. From some topical references the book would appear to have been written about 1615.

Together with a Premonition of his Maiesties, to all . . Monarches, Kings, free Princes and States of Christendome . . . Imprinted at London by Robert Barker . . . April. 8. Anno 1609. . .

Sm. 4to., with a second title-page; the last leaf O_4 missing; modern vellum, with the original limp vellum wrapper bound in 1609

In the first edition acknowledging the King's authorship, at p. 13 the writer observes that a hangman is fitted to answer such an historian, i.e. Parsons; but in this edition, the sentence runs: "but a rope is the fittest answere for such an Historian." It is suggested that Bishop Barlow was responsible for this change, for he pointed out to the King that Parsons might play on the other word, and turn it against him.

On the back of the title to this April impression, the King warns the public against former copies issued without his authority—probably a mere subterfuge for slips of the pen.
